Medical Schools

The University of Washington School of Medicine (UWSOM) was founded in 1946. In the early 1970s it formed a unique partnership with the states of Washington, Alaska, Montana and Idaho, adding Wyoming in 1996, to provide innovative and cost-effective medical education to this region known as WWAMI. More information about the UW School of Medicine is available at uwmedicine.org/education.

The Elson S. Floyd College of Medicine offers a medical degree for Washington residents. The Elson S. Floyd College of Medicine is Washington's community-based medical school. Named after Washington State University's late president, Dr. Elson S. Floyd, the college was created to expand medical education and health care access and to fill critical health care gaps in communities across the state. Details about the degree programs available at the college are available at medicine.wsu.edu.

Pacific Northwest University of Health Sciences, based in Yakima Washington, graduated its first class of 70 medical students from the College of Osteopathic Medicine in 2012. Since opening in 2008, PNWU has experienced significant growth and accommodates 280 medical students currently. In addition to the Yakima campus, 16 core rotation sites in communities throughout the Pacific Northwest in hospitals and clinics have welcomed PNWU-COM students for clinical training rotations in years three and four. Details about the degree programs at Pacific Northwest University of Health Sciences are available at pnuw.edu.

Northwest Regional Primary Care Association (NWRPCA) has partnered with A.T. Still University's School of Osteopathic Medicine in Arizona (SOMA) to form a Region X community campus medical school located in Portland, OR, with students rotating in community health centers and other facilities across the Pacific Northwest. The school supports student aims to practice in high need communities when they enter the workforce. There is also a campus based at HealthPoint Community Health Center in the Renton, WA area, from which students rotate throughout Washington. More details about the NWRPCA/A.T. Still SOMA partnership is available at nwrpca.org and at atsu.edu.

The School of Naturopathic Medicine at Bastyr University is located in Kenmore, Washington, with clinics in Seattle and an additional campus in San Diego, California. Bastyr's accredited naturopathic doctor (ND) degree program includes comprehensive clinical training and research.
